

ABSTRACT

A kit for remote control of the shutter release of photographic equipment and the like including a remote control device preferably of the electrical or electronic type having a release switch and a mount for the device to support the same on a photographic head or other equipment. A seat to house the control device is provided on the mount and the device is removably housed within the seat.